NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

The Evening Sun today publishes an interview with Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, in which he says that if there should be a break in the diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, it would be followed by war.

German Ambassador Absolutely Denies He Made Such Statements

The Sun states that the interview was given to a person close to the Ambassador. The Ambassador is then quoted as saying: "There seems to be a liking in this country for talk about breaking off diplomatic relations. Does anybody, I wonder, understand what breaking off relations means? Look at the state of affairs. Germany has, out of deference to the United States, and solely out of deference to the United States, made most important concessions."

German Ambassador Absolutely Denies He Made Such Statements

"Germany, understand, has adopted reprisals against England, because of England's blockade order, and attempt to drive the entire German people, and we have adopted our submarine policy as a reprisal. Then, out of deference to the United States, we have made the concession that no passenger ship shall be attacked unless it attempts to escape or ram."

German Ambassador Absolutely Denies He Made Such Statements

"This has been achieved through diplomatic means. If diplomatic relations are broken off, the submarine commanders will be instructed to sink everything they see, and, of course, this means war within two or three days."

German Ambassador Absolutely Denies He Made Such Statements

A reporter this afternoon called the attention of German Ambassador Bernstorff to the interview in today's Evening Sun, crediting to him the statement that a diplomatic break between the United States and Germany would result in war.

German Ambassador Absolutely Denies He Made Such Statements

Count von Bernstorff was at luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton when the interview was shown to him. "I have given no person an interview on any subject and have authorized no statement," he said, referring to the Sun article. "Does the statement represent your sentiments?" he was asked. "I cannot make any statement of my sentiments."

CHORUS GIRL SUES JOHN WANAMAKER, JR.

Lucille Storer Demands $100,000 Because Merchants' Seion Will Not Wed Her

John Wanamaker, Jr., son of Rodman Wanamaker and grandson of John Wanamaker, is named as defendant in a $100,000 breach-of-promise suit by Miss Lucille Storer, of New York city, a Broadway chorus girl.

Young Wanamaker now is in Europe. He was served with the papers in the case when he came to this country June 25 for the wedding of his sister, Miss Marie Louise, to Gurnee Munn.

The defendant is in his early twenties. He was a student at Princeton University, but did not graduate. For some time he has been connected with the Wanamaker business in a small capacity, and he has always had plenty of money. His mother died in 1901, and in July, 1909, his father, Rodman Wanamaker, married Violet Cruger, daughter of the late Eugene Guido Cruger.

Henry A. Wise, counsel for Mr. Wanamaker, has made a motion in the Supreme Court for the transfer of the action to the United States Court, on the ground that Miss Storer is a resident of New York and Mr. Wanamaker of Pennsylvania. This motion is to be heard Tuesday morning.

Wanamaker began to court the chorus girl in the spring of 1912, according to her story. On June 11 of that year, the plaintiff asserts, young Wanamaker promised to marry her at a certain future date to be agreed upon. She relied upon him, she says, and he continued his attentions. For two and a half years, 1914, Wanamaker refused to marry the chorus girl at that time or any other time, according to the complaint.

With her demand for $100,000, Miss Storer also asks interest on the sum of the alleged engagement. Her attorney is Henry M. V. Connelly, of 111 Broad street. The Wanamaker attorney admits that his client accompanied Miss Storer to various places of amusement, but denies that he ever asked her to be his wife.

OCEAN STEAMSHIP CLERKS FURLOUGHED

Demoralization of the passenger service of the International Mercantile Marine Company out of this port, due to the war, has made it necessary to close temporarily the ticket office on Walnut street below Broad. Five clerks who were employed there have received indefinite furloughs. The closing of the passenger office gave rise to a rumor that it was the intention of the International Mercantile Marine to move to New York. F. F. Young, general manager of the company's local office, emphatically denied this today. He said that the company would continue to hold the lease on its passenger office, and was endeavoring to increase the office space of the freight office in the Bourse.
